5 Keys to Help Educators Succeed with Students who Are Wired Differently – and Survive the Process

FACT: 20 percent of all students are diagnosable for a mental, emotional or behavioral health issue.

This seminar will help classroom teachers, counselors, administrators and other school personnel understand how to support this high-potential, neuro-diverse portion of the student population while avoiding an unmanageable classroom environment.

In a single classroom, it is quite conceivable that a teacher might be dealing with up to five different disorders. Some of the most common challenges mainstreamed in the classroom are:

- Anxiety Disorders
- Trauma & Stress
- Early Onset Bipolar Disorder
- Depression
- Disruptive Mood Dysregulation Disorder
- Asperger's Syndrome
- Oppositional Defiant Disorder

These issues are often undiagnosed and easily misunderstood – and may be responded to as simple discipline issues. Behaviors that tend to be common to students who are wired differently include:

- Disorganization
- Perfectionism
- Trouble dealing with change
- Performance and testing anxiety
- Social anxiety
- Over- and under-reacting to adults and peers

The goal of this seminar is to provide you with key insights and approaches to help you prevent disruptions and distractions, while maximizing the abilities of students with these unique challenges.

You Will Learn to:

- Restructure traditional policies and practices that often fail with these students
- Implement do's and don'ts for supporting this group of students with dignity and respect through:
 - Assisting with organizational challenges
 - Building an environment that minimizes perfectionism
 - Controlling change, while helping students deal with it
- Create a climate that strikes a balance between challenge and support
- Reduce stigma and create a respectful climate in the classroom and school
- Integrate successful approaches to reach students with emotional, mental and behavioral challenges.

Preventing Suicide: You Can Make A Difference!

Regular DVD Price $295 – Introductory Price $195
 Also available via AccuTrain On-Demand

Grades 3-12

Suicide is one of the leading causes of death among students in North America – and the numbers are increasing, unfortunately. Surprisingly, almost half of the students who try to commit suicide will make their first attempt in elementary or middle school. Other than parents or guardians, educators provide the primary adult interaction and influence for many young people, and therefore can play a pivotal role in identifying students who may need help. Based on the popular AccuTrain seminar Critical Mental Health Challenges, this video program will help teachers, administrators, counselors and para-professionals feel better-equipped to intervene with a student who may have lost hope. It uses a dramatized interaction to demonstrate how an educator might best handle the difficult, but critical, conversation with a troubled student.
